WHITE BEANS

White beans are also known as cannellini or alubia beans. When pureed, they are similar to creamy mashed potatoes and make a perfect low-fat base for dips and spreads. White beans are used in cuisines worldwide, especially in Mediterranean-influenced dishes such as barboucha in Algeria and Morocco, fasoulia in Iraq, and minestrone soup in Italy. White beans are rich in fiber, iron, and magnesium. They also have a very low glycemic index and have detoxifying properties. Unlike red meat, a source of protein, white beans have a much lower calorie count and are virtually fat-free. We export the best quality of white beans to North Africa and the Middle East under our brand Habba. In addition, we produce superior-quality white beans for canners in Italy, Spain, and the UK, which are graded, color-sorted, and finally handpicked by a team of women under the strictest ISO and HACCP standards.
